

August 2002

Brighton company expands and aims to recruit 80 more staff in area

Brighton based Inkfish call centres now has four different sites and has expanded its operations. As a ringing endorsement of the Inkfish brand, parent company Domestic & General Group PLC has rebranded all its main call handling facilities to the name of Inkfish.

Founded in 1995, Inkfish now has over 1,500 call centre staff in Brighton, Slough, Redhill and Nottingham. Domestic & General's fulfilment operations in Coventry and Burnley will also now carry the Inkfish name.

"We are actively searching for another call centre location and also recruiting hard to ensure we have the right kind of people to fulfil and exceed our clients' expectations," says Sue Marshall, Inkfish's sales and marketing director. "If anyone is planning a change of career and wants to retrain or has some experience in a call centre environment and wants to join one that is going places, then they should contact us on 01273 384446. We currently have at least 80 vacancies in the Brighton area."

